POLLUTION

The word "pollution" comes from a Latin verb "polluere" which means to profane, to make dirty or to degrade. To profane means to misuse what is sacred. Our earth is sacred as it is the temple of nature. Man regrets and misuses nature. He profanes the temple by his carelessness. This action is called "pollution".

In nature, some things are of vital importance for us; one of these is the ozone layer. What do you know about the ozone layer? The ozone layer is a gas layer useful to filter the UV sunbeams(1).It's a thin band of stratosphere floating above the earth at the altitude to 25 kilometres.

Another point is about the air. Why the air is so much important for us? The air is necessary for the survival of every living thing on earth. Without air, we could not breathe, we could not hear, we could not be protected from the UV sunbeams(1) and the daily temperature would be very hot. When we are using the pollution, we put in danger lives or everything.

What is the greenhouse effect(2)? The greenhouse effect happens in relation with the gas in the atmosphere, the most important is the dioxide of carbon. These gases keep the ray done by the warm earth under the sunbeams.

The greenhouse effect is a good thing for plants but if the quality of the gas (...) is in a reasonable amount.

In Vintsy, Number 32.

Notes:
(1)UV sunbeams: "rayons ultraviolets".
(2)greenhouse effect: "effet de serre"
